The third League game between the Memphis and Columbus clubs resulted in a victory for the home team by the pitching of Bond and the very wild throwing of the visitors. The crowd was not large but was somewhat interested, principally on account of the kicking done by the visitors.

The Game.

Cross opened for the home team by going out on first by a grounder. Bell then hit a straight three-bagger past left fielder to the fence, and came home on Collius's mull of Sylvester's bounder. Sylvester went to third on Strauss's mull of Warden's hit, and home on a wild throw by Hamburg. McLanghlin then hit to Collins, who three home to catch Werden, but was not quick enough. Sullivan then sent a daisy-cutter past second. Corrigan hit a bounder to Strauss, who muffed and then threw over first baser's head, McLanghlin coming in, and Sullivan also on Whiting's wid throw to third. Bond then struck out, and Steinhoff fouled out. Strauss got safe on a fumble by Cross, and caught Collins, then hit to Corse, who threw to second and caught Strauss, and Mack sent it to first and caught Collins, making a double play.
